ALLIANCE IN ACTION

Volume 6    December 2003

Drug Action Team Update

Developing the Anti-Drug Action Plan: KPAA is working with Roy Nishida, the County's Drug Coordinator, to facilitate development of an anti-drug plan and launch the implementation of the plan's activities. Four committees, whose initial participants were appointed by Mayor Bryan Baptiste, are meeting to tackle specific areas that will be included in the island-wide drug plan – Prevention, Enforcement, Treatment and Community Integration. Each committee has a liaison to the Drug Action Team, which meets to coordinate the work taking place within the committees. Our goal is to complete preparation of a five-year plan and two-year action plan by April 2004, and then to begin implementing the action plan activities.

County and KPAA Hosted November 8 Drug Planning Forum: About 150 people recently spent a Saturday at the Coconut Beach Resort learning about the impacts of illegal drug use on Kaua'i and steps being taken to mitigate the problem. Participants also developed a vision statement of Kaua'i in five years – a vision of what we could achieve by alleviating drugs on our island.

Mayor Bryan Baptiste welcomed forum participants and asked for broad community participation in the war against drugs. Lieutenant Governor Duke Aiona discussed the State's efforts to address the drug problem, acknowledged the work of the Baptiste administration, and stressed the need for ongoing county/state coordination. U.S. Attorney Ed Kubo discussed the need for affordable drug treatment, longer medical insurance coverage for treatment, more drug prevention education targeted to at-risk youth, and, for those not at risk, drug education and awareness classes with a message tailored to the age of the child. In the area of enforcement, he stated efforts should focus on stopping the importation of ice, changing the State Constitution to bring back the "walk and talk" program, and changing the State wire tap law to make it consistent with federal law. Sherry Wong, Director of Training, Prevention Science Group, Channing Bete Company, described the Communities That Care (CTC) System. CTC is based on successful public health models that target predictors of problems specific to a community. It is a data-driven, research-based approach to promote positive development of children and youth. Shawn Cremer and Christina Aki described their experiences of drug addiction to recovery, and stressed the need for on-island treatment services. Senator Daniel K. Inouye announced that the Omnibus Bill now before Congress includes $1.2 million to support Kaua'i's anti-drug efforts.

Holiday Musings...The Importance of Dialogue

With the holidays near and as the year draws to a close, I have been thinking about the community development work KPAA and so many of our member organizations undertake. It can be challenging work, and also hugely rewarding. A great deal of what we do involves promoting dialogue so we can learn more, improve understanding, come to agreements and generate action. I recently read a quote that eloquently summarizes the importance of dialogue and I wanted to share it with you.

'Dialogue'... is a conversation with a center, not sides. It is a way of taking the energy of our differences and channeling it toward something that has never been created before. It lifts us out of polarization and into a greater common sense, and is thereby a means for accessing the intelligence and coordinated power of groups of people.

Dialogue fulfills deeper, more widespread needs than simply 'getting to yes'. The aim of a negotiation is to reach agreement among parties who differ. The intention of dialogue is to reach new understanding and, in doing so, to form a totally new basis from which to think and act. In dialogue, one not only solves problems, one dissolves them. We do not merely try to reach agreement, we try to create a context from which many new agreements might come. And we seek to uncover a base of shared meaning that can greatly help coordinate and align our actions with our values.

Dialogue and the Art of Thinking Together

And so throughout this holiday season and in the New Year take time for dialogue with family, friends, colleagues and clients. Discover together the serendipity that comes from the "aha!" moments of shared understanding and commitment to action. And above all, have a safe and joyful holiday season.
